ALICE DEBOOS
PARTNER & PRACTICE AREA LEADER

K&L GATES

Alice DeBoos, LLB (Hons) and BA, is a highly respected employment and industrial relations lawyer, who is regularly sought after for advice, litigation, national press commentary, training and speaking events. Alice is Practice Area Leader of the global Labour, Employment and Workplace Safety practice at K&L Gates and sits on the firm's Global Management Committee. K&L Gates comprises some 45 lawyers in Australia and more than 200 offices worldwide.

Throughout her more than 20 year career, she has provided advice on all manner of issues relating to employment and discrimination as well strategic industrial relations advice and assistance. Alice has specialised in dealing with the whole range of executive employment issues, including restraints, discrimination, harassment, bullying, remuneration, performance management and other workplace behavioural issues.

Alice's clients include large companies across a number of industries, including government, construction, infrastructure, transport, banking and finance, electricity and aged care. She focuses on providing clients with strategic and commercial advice in relation to managing workplace issues, partnering with clients to assist in obtaining outcomes which suit their business.

Alice is also an experienced litigator regularly representing clients in tribunals and superior courts in employment, industrial and restraint cases. She regularly appears in the Fair Work Commission on the full range of individual and collective matters.

She is a thought leader and expert who practically shares her experience through training and regular speaking engagements at conferences and seminars in workplace relations and human resources, including the firm's Law@Work workshops. She is often requested by external conferences to speak on the full range of employment issues such as termination of employment, equal opportunity and discrimination, as well as the management of relationships at work.

SOME OF ALICE'S CREDENTIALS INCLUDE:
